Re: In the Matter of Petition of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I choose a small ISP because they provide a better service at a lower cost than the large providers and because they are committed to providing fair internet with no censorship or bandwidth shaping by the ISP. I also believe in supporting my local community by supporting local businesses who in turn have local interests.

Part of the FCC's argument for repealing net neutrality rules was that if users wanted net neutrality then the market would provide through competition. If the big telecoms are able to get new rules in place which stop competition, there will be no way for consumers to choose. The administration that opposed net neutrality rules cannot also be against competition.

Fair, fast broadband is critical to my family and livelihood. Without it I would be unable to telecommute and would never be able to spend time with my family or participate in my childrens' education.
